

ON POSSIBILITY: social change and the arts + humanities

A book series inspired by an ethos of creativity and cross-disciplinary collaboration between the Wexner Center for the Arts and the Global Arts + Humanities
Discovery Theme

Forthcoming from The Ohio
State University Press

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Ohio State University's Global Arts + Humanities Discovery Theme and Wexner Center for the Arts are pleased to announce a collaborative new book series, forthcoming from The Ohio State University Press.

Each volume in this cross-disciplinary series – On Possibility: Social Change and the Arts + Humanities – will align with the annual theme of the Global Arts + Humanities Society of Fellows. The first volume will be Human Rights Pasts and Futures.

On Possibility will broaden intellectual horizons, demonstrate new methods and orientations, and open up pathways for cultural and artistic innovation. In so doing, this series will amplify the vital role of arts and humanities modes of inquiry and discovery to cultivate understandings across differences and envision socially-just possibilities.

Series editors include:

- Wendy S. Hesford Faculty Director of the Global Arts + Humanities Discovery Theme & Professor of English & Ohio Eminent Scholar
- Puja Batra-Wells Program Manager, Global Arts + Humanities Discovery Theme
- Dionne Custer Edwards Director of Learning and Public Practice, Wexner Center for the Arts
- Kelly Kivland Chief Curator and Director of Exhibitions, Wexner Center for the Arts
